

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A key cover has a first sidewall having an aperture therethrough and a second sidewall that together define a space capable of receiving a conventional key therein. The key having an opening that when the key is 5 inserted into the key holder aligns with the first sidewall aperture and simultaneously aligns with an aperture in the second sidewall. A tactile feature is present on a sidewall or sidewall edge such that the key cover can be identified by feel or described to another individual without producing the key cover or inserted key for their inspection.